

The facts

You are more likely to need a transplant than become a donor.

A donor can donate a heart, lungs, two kidneys, pancreas, liver and small bowel and restore the sight of two people.

Many relatives say that they have found some comfort in knowing that the loss of their loved one has given someone else the chance to live.

More than 11 million people in the UK have already joined the NHS Organ Donor Register.

LEAVE MORE THAN MEMORIES

Leave someone a future

No-one wants to dwell on death, but the hard fact is that tragedy can touch any family at any time. It's easy to turn away and avoid the issue, but why not do something positive instead; something that could give a future to someone else in the event of your death? Could you leave a better legacy than life itself?

All you need to do is join the NHS Organ Donor Register. You can do it in minutes right here or online. Even if you currently carry a Donor Card, registering is the vital step.

The need for new donors has never been more urgent. So why leave it to another day? Leave the gift of life today.

TEAR AND MOISTEN GLUED EDGE

Give someone else the chance to live

Right now, more than 7,000 people in the UK need an organ transplant. Despite the huge advances in medicine and the great success of transplant operations, people are still dying waiting. There is a critical shortage of organs and the gap between the number of organs donated and the number of people waiting for a transplant is increasing.

Now is the time to register, even if you already carry a Donor Card. Discuss your decision with those closest to you, so they know your wishes should the time ever come. Then simply complete the attached form and return it to us FREEPOST. You can also register online at www.uktransplant.org.uk
